

I am a listener of the Christian radio station, K-Love. I believe K-Love is a very important radio station to have because it gives me and others hope. I understand that we could have these radio stations individually in cities but the effect wouldn't be the same. Every listener of K-Love knows that anywhere they go in the country, if there's a K-Love station they will hear the exact same programming as they hear in their hometown, giving them a feeling of peace and comfort about leaving home. The service K-Love provides to the entire country, much less a local community is that they are open to giving anybody hope. They receive many calls from suicidal and give them hope. Anybody can call into K-Love and get help and advice for any situation and the person at K-Love who answers and the entire staff at K-Love will pray for that person. Any service that gives people hope and talks people out of suicide is a service that should continue. Thank you.
